trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually zens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safegrard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, CHERRY PECTOPAL is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Broachitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toil is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied apon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected. egar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the nave herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great covers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Disploretic, Carminative, Nutritions, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

The fashionable visiting card for married ladies now is almost square, enat Toronto Mills, seed wheat, seed corn, graving being in old English, with the usband's name in addition to the wife's Why is it So?

MR. EDITOR :- It seems strange to aw-abii ling and order-loving people, that, in any civilized community, persons should be found craving that respect that should be awarded to Christian and official gentlemen, who can so far tolerate the violation of laws that are necessary for the protection of society, as to sympathize with the reckless transgressor, and manifest desires that he should escare the just penalty of the law.

Why is it that rum-sellers, whose business is vastly more pernicious in its results than any other that can be named even if they keep within the purview of the law, are to regard themselves, or to be regarded by others, as the class of men who alone are to be privileged with violating the law with impunity, though their illegal acts lead to the destruction of life, property, industry, and the means of support of others.

Indeed, sir, it seems clear that the egalizing of this most fruitful source of crime, and the toleration of liquor sellers in violating even the laws by which their business is to be regulated and restricted has had the effect to demoralize public sentiment, corrupt our courts and juries, and paralyze the civil arm of the country, to an alarming extent.

The apathy of the friends of temperance in regard to executing the liquor laws we have, has been construed into a cooling down of the temperance and pro hibition principle in our state; this think a mistake. The temperance cause has lost ground relatively, it is true, since temperance men were cheated out of their prohibition law by the trickery of poli ticians, officers, judges and lawyers in '54 and '56. It is loss of confidence in the courts, and not a positive falling off in temperance sentiment. Let that confidence be restored, let the temperance friends get clear of their cowardice and political party attachments, and I believe there is a majority of prohibitionists in our state to-day.

We hope a better era is dawning. The friends of temperance, wives, mothers, sisters, daughters, and this whole community, have reason to thank the court and jury for vindicating the law, and the learned counsel who so ably and faithfully advocated the cause of the injured wife, in the recent civil damage case in Mexico.

We cherish no vindictive feeling to ward the liquor dealers. We only wish them to keep within the limits of the law, or to engage in better business. It is for protection, and not for wrath's sake that we urge the enforcement of the law against the transgressors. It is to save our country from going into a state of anarchy and mob rule that we insist on maintaining the majesty of the law. A LOYALIST.

It is reported that Theodore Tilton once said, "People may call me a fool, but they cannot call me a coward." Mr. Tilton has suffered for his bravery in supporting his ideas. It is a part of the duty of a good man to expose wrong, but it becomes a very delicate duty when he has to expose it among the professed good. A great many of the professed good in the world are very popular, and of course they would not have their wrong doings exposed. In the history of persecutions we have read when men were not allowed to buy or sell to those of an opposite faith. Sometimes in this free country men volunteer to act upon this principle, and sometimes they go a little farther and refuse to have dealings with others, because they deal with men they do not like. We sometimes hear of persons who have convinced themselves by practical experience, that "advertising doesn't pay." To all such we can say that advertising does pay for all who understand to palm off an inferior stock of goods at high rates through the medium of the newspapers. THE NEW REMINGTON SEWING MACHINE It is built on perfect mechanical priniples, making the lock-stitch without the use of cog-wheels, rotary cams, or lever arms. It is the easiest and stillest running of all shuttle machines and sews all kinds of thread from 300 cotton to the coarsest linen. I was so well pleased with it and the material of which it was constructed, that I exchanged a Singer ma chine for one and am fully satisfied that I have in every respect a better machine. More about Sccieties.

There is a good deal in what "Laura" says in the Silent World under the heading of "Something about Societies." But before we say anything on the subject we wish to express our surprise at her array of words: "If enough enthusiasm and willingness to labor, existed among the teachers of our institutions," etc., and to condemn the wholesale accusation It is not the fault of the teachers that things are not as they should be; there are powers above them which can veto, and it would be well for future writers to remember this fact.

Few will deny that the pupils in our institutions need something more than the "monotonous round of school-life." The deaf-mute pupil is, in some ways, peculiarly constituted, and he wants something to parallel with what the hearing school boy gains almost uncon-sciously through his ears. The literary associations in some of our institutions do a good deal to stimulate the pupils in acquiring a knowledge of things which they would hardly learn elsewhere. The Fanwood Literary Association has members of all grades of standing, and whenever it has a debate, there is always a volunteer from some seemingly impossi ble sphere, who, when he gets accustomed to the platform, displays powers of argument hitherto unsuspected. Even little fellows, barely a dozen years of age. will get up and recite a story or an iter of news which they have picked up in the papers and tell it with remarkable correctness. And if a little applause is given, it is an encouragement which will bear fruit, and in a few weeks the same youngster will have something more to tell from his readings. Of course this is not universal, nor is it possible where the association has such a large number of members, and, though it would be expedient to grade them off into organizamultiplicity of societies.

For the most part, the pupils of the higher grades have all the heavy work to do, and in its accomplishment, improve their narrative and reasoning powers. The younger ones look on and understand in proportion to the time they have been under instruction; sometimes join the debates, as we have remarked above, but generally keep their back seats till they are old and advanced enough to come forward and act as leaders them. And the principal should be at lege." gether once a week or a month accordinstitution might have a little convention of its own once a month, and a good printing office by which each might publish its own reports of the proceedings, and exchange them among each other, good among themselves.

Minor Topics. A pupil of the New York Institution ran away recently, and endeavored to make his way to his home in Northern New York on foot. Walking along the track of the Hudson River Railroad, not very far from Albany, he was run over aud killed by a passing train. His name was Charles Blackburn. Keep off the railroad track!

The District of Columbia Clerc Memorial Association is evidently in need of an organizer, and one, withal, who has some pluck and more common sense. When first organized, it was going to shoulder the whole thing and carry usalong at railroad speed. Suddenly it collapsed or went to sleep. Now, at the eleventh olence supplemented the liberal action of wanted to set it on its pins. But the country has managed to get along tolerably well without its valuable aid, and is not particularly concerned about the awakening. Meanwhile virtuous splurges from the Silent World to recover those few missing dollars, will be in order.

The Utica Observer, in speaking of the death of young Blackburn, of Gouverneur, meant to copy from the Albany Express, as follows: "It was evident that the deceased was a mute." The typesetters made the last word "mule!"

Speaking of Elder Knapp, the Galaxy for May says: "Eloquence of a genuine sort was not rare in the Elder's sermons. Ther's one language,' he said, 'that no worldly man can understand, and that's the language of Canaan. Why, there was a deaf and dumb man in—, that stood up in church meeting and related his conversion—couldn't speak, mind you, but he was admitted at once, and the whole vestry was in tears. Why, blessed be God! if he couldn't speak, his soul stood tip-toe in his eyes!'

The Silent World is afraid lest will "wound its spirit" of pride if it frankly confess its fault in charging us personally as a "thief," so as to let the reading community of deaf-mutes judge for themselves who it is that most need the healing "Balm of Gilead" to apply to his "wounded spirits." It agree with "C. Aug. Brown" that the free distribution of a weekly paper among our class of people encourages them to beg gary! Such an idea is preposterous and scandalous. All "C. Aug. Brown's" slurs which have been too insignificant to have any wounding effect upon the spirit of our Journal, have only revealed his own 'wounded spirit" of envy, as well as that of the Silent World. The whole truth in the premises is that, with characteristic cowardice, the Silent World has lowered its standard among contemporar by allowing "C. Aug. Brown" to resort to making statements through its col umns in regard to our personal characacter, which it well knows are base false hoods. It is trying to build itself up at the expense of the Deaf-Mute's Journal. We do not object to severe criticisms in a gentlemanly manner, but when we are personally maligned, we shall defend our own integrity and honesty, and pursue the even tenor of our way as ever before

Address of President E. M. Gallaudet. On the Tenth Anniversary (or Presenta advantages of thorough mental training tion Day) of the National Deaf-Mute College, March 15, 1874.

[From the National (Washington, D C.) Republican, through the courtesy of Mr. C. K. W. Strong.]

President Gallaudet delivered his ad ess, as follows: On the 8th of April, 1864, Abraham Lincoln, then President of the United States, signed the following act of Con-

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the board of directors of the Columbia Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered tions of fifteen or twenty, there could to grant and confirm such degrees in the not be accommodations found for the liberal arts and sciences to such pupils of the institution, or others, who, their proficiency in learning, or other meritorious distinction, they shall think entitled to them, as are usually granted and conferred in colleges, and to grant to such graduates diplomas or certificates, sealed and signed in such manner as said gence can comprehend eternity and infinboard of directors may determine, to ity. The probable influence in the world authenticate and perpetuate the memory of such graduation. When this act was before the Senate for consideration its passage was objected posed was without precedent. A distinguished Senator opposed the bill because a sound in the air, or those of material lake or river. But the most important fact of all in the history of our first defact of all in the history of our fi to discuss their methods of work in the degrees in the arts and sciences the same school-room, they ought of course to have as in Harvard university or Yale col-

the head of these meetings. Like a wise general, he should call his officers to-think it will rather make the institution ridiculous to give it the power to confer ing to convenience, receive their reports literary or scientific degrees, whereas I and plan a campaign. In a word, every think it would be proper to give it the power to confer some degree that may be framed or invented for the deaf and dumb."

But there were Senators who well understood the purpose of this institution thus accomplishing a vast amount of to establish a department of so high a grade that its graduates might properly eceive degrees in the arts and sciences.

The gentlemen explained to the satisfaction of the Senate, what was intended to be done under the operation of the pending bill, and it was passed without dissenting vote.

The House concurred in the action of the Senate without objection, and with the signature of the President the first chapter in the history of this college was completed. Two months later public exercises were held, in which the purposes and objects of the Deaf-Mute college were fully set forth, and within four days thereafter Congress made an appropriation of $26, 000, for the enlargement of the grounds of the institution. In September of the same year the college began its educational operations, Congress, and there was no lack of means for the prosecution of the novel undertaking. Doubts were, however, expressed as to the practicability of affording collegiate education to the deaf and dumb, and many who did not question the feasibility of the enterprise were quick to ask, Cui bono?

As the work of the college advanced and its numbers increased, the appeals made to Congress in its behalf called forth serious and sometimes violent opposition. this amounting, in 1868, to a prolonged effort on the part of the then leader of the House of Representatives to destroy the entire institution. But the sympathy and judgment of Congress was not with the enemies of the college. In every struggle the enlightened and liberal counsels of our friends prevailed, and each session of Congress that has passed since the foundation of the college has set its seal of unqualified approval on our work.

We have invited you to join to-day in celebrating our tenth anniversary, and it is appropriate that a brief recital should be made of the results which have crowned the labors of our first decade. The material prosperity of the institution speaks for itself to the eyes of all beholders. Our little lot of two acres has expanded to a noble domain of one hundred. The frail rustic cottage, through whose slender walls the winter winds whistled and the summer sun scorched, In showing that a German scholar is has given way to enduring and beautiful

New England has sent twentyapering digits without seeming to have six, the Middle States twenty-four, the South twenty-six, and the West fortyone, so that it is almost in exact propor tion to the population of the several sec tions of the country that the benefits of this single college for deaf-mutes have been distributed.

And it is asked. What are these bene fits? It may be replied. They are such advantages for mental and moral culture as are offered to hearing and speaking youth in their higher seminaries and col

Our curriculum of study comprises the higher mathematics, the Latin, French and German languages; the elements of natural science, including chemistry, botany, astronomy, geology, mineralogy, physiology and zoology; a full course of English philology, and related studies, with ancient and modern history, not omitting proper attention to mental moral and political science.

It is too early for us to estimate the full advantages that may be credited to could not hear him. He was arrested the labors and outlays of our first decade But even the partial results that are before us may be taken as affording rich and encouraging return. Twenty who have gone out from the college have been engaged in teaching. Two have become editors and publishers of newspapers, three others have taken positions connect ed with journalism. Three have entered the civil service of the Government, one of them having risen rapidly to a high and responsible position. One, while filling a position as instructor in a Western institution, has rendered important service to the Coast Survey as a microscopist. Two have taken places in the faculty of their alma mater, and are rendering valuable returns as instructors where they were students but a short time since. Some have gone into mercantile and other offices; some have undertaken business on their own account while not a few have chosen agricultural and mechanical pursuits, in which the will give them a superiority over those Six have been called to pass from the life that now is, to that which is to come and all these left behind them bright evidence that they rightly estimated the rue issue of life.

One of these sainted alumni, who was our midst two short months ago, and tho would have borne away the ighest honors of this day had his life een spared, wrote to his sister a fortnight before his death, as follows: night before his death, as follows:

"It will take away half the bitterness of death to have been allowed to learn something: to have obtained one glimpse across the hills and valleys away off into that promised land of perfect knowledge, perfect love, perfect purity, where men no longer 'see through a glass darkly.' For such I take to be the true result of study: the more one learns, the clearer does he see God's wondrous goodness, the closer is he drawn to all things hely."

Our first decade is passed. We can write its history, detailing the events of each fleeting month and year; but the full measure of its results can only be rightly estimated by Him whose intellifor good of the six score youth who have been taught here, is far beyond the power of mortal computation. For there is an immortality of influence as well as individuality, and the impressions we make on others do not the as to the waveless or sound in the air, or those of water on cade is that it is only the first and not the last. While we have cause to rejoice to-day over the fruit of labor past, our greatest reason for congratulation arises from the hopes we are permitted to entertain for the future,

The College for the Deaf and Dumb is no longer an experiment. Its continued existence is no longer problematical. Laws of the United States are its endowment. Lands and buildings held in the name of the Government form its permanent abiding place. The representatives of our states and people in five Congresses have pledged the nation to its support. Humanly speaking, we may regard its perpetuity insured. For this. and all it suggests of good to be wrought during the decades and centuries yet before us, let us give thanks to-day to Him who while on earth wrought miracles that the deaf might hear and the dumb speak; who is now working greater wonders even than those, and who shall in the fullness of time rule all hearts and join all hands in charity and peace. How a Blind Mute Reads.

An interesting case of combined deafess and blindness existed in the Royal Institution at Copenhagen in 1867. The young man, then about thirty ears of age, had become blind at twenty having been born deaf. He conversed intelligently by signs, and made many inquiries of the author in regard to America, expressing his great admiration for our "Monitors." His method of reading the newspapers was not a little curious. A small boy, reader, though knowing absolutely nothing of the sense of what he was conveygive it back to his reader in the signlanguage, thus repaying him for his kindness .- President Gallandet in April Annals.

Fatal Railroad Casualty.

Andrew Kartz, a deaf man, about fifty years old, who has been employed at Greenburg, Westchester county, was killed by a locomotive on the Hudson River Railroad, near that village, vesterday forenoon. The unfortunate man was struck with tremendous force and hurled against a bank, mutilating the body in a shocking manner. Deceased is understood to have a brother living in Williamsburg. Coroner Bassett held an inquest on the remains .- New York Paper, April 15, 1874. Again we say, keep off, keep off the Hearing with the Eyes.

Shakespeare makes one of his comic characters say :

"I see a voice: Now will I to the chink To spy, an' I can hear my Thisby's face." Pains and patience have within the last twenty years made that absurd use of the and tell what the shadow says by the senses almost literal and very useful in the case of deaf-mutes.

The possibilities of lip-reading are well illustrated in the case of Walter P. Chamberlain, of Marblehead, who delivered ple's Journal.

an address upon the subject at the convention of articulation teachers in Worcester. Mr. Chamberlain, who is now forty-two years old, has been stone-deaf of five, but his parents took the greatest pains to teach him to read by observing the motion of a speaker's lips, and he has also derived great assistance from studying the motion of his own lips be

Mr. Chamberlain has attained such proficiency in the art of lipreading and articulation that during the war, he enlisted, and successfully passed a medical examination. He was in the service for some time, when one night his secret was discovered and he was discharged.

Upon the night in question he had occasion to go to the spring supplying the camp with water, when he was challenged by the guard. Owing to the darkness he could not see the sentinel, of course and had an examination the next morning, and in response to the question,

'Are you deaf?" he answered,-"If I were deaf, how could I under tand your question?"

(From the British Magazine for Deaf & Dumb.) Ephphatha.

"A man was brought to him, who was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech, and He took him aside from the multitude and put His fingers into his ears, and touched his tongue, and looking up to heaven He sighed, and said to him, 'Ephphatha'; and straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed and he spake plain." (Mark vii, 35, to the end); the prophecy of Isaiah (xxx, 5, 6,) being thus he prophecy of Isaiah (xxx, 5, 6,) being

This word "Ephphatha" is met with ut once in the whole Testament. Mark s the only one who has mentioned it in his gospel, and he has taken pains to exolain its meaning for us, for he says, 'that is, be opened," so we need not go ar into the depths of linguistical or etynological dissertations on the subject. This gospel has recorded some other words in their original tongue, which fell from the lips of Him, who went about doing good while on earth, such as "Talitha cumi," that is, Damsel arise," &c. Mark is believed to be the same person mentioned elsewhere under the name of John, surnamed Mark, and was disciple of $t. Peter, who is said to have employed him in writing the gospel for the use of the Roman Christians, so it must be Peter who has the credit of being so particular in his narrative. "Ephphaha" is a word which was uttered by our plessed Savier to one who was afflicted like myself, and it has always been a favorite and familiar word with me, and ought to be engraved on the heart of every mute. Why did He look up towards heaven while in the act of His beevolence? The action is plain to us all, especially to the deaf and dumb, who are well versed in silent language; we can understand the language of the eyes and face, it was very intelligible and significant, even to an uneducated deaf-mute. It was to intimate to the recipient that all the benefits flowed from above! This was one of the many stupendous and won-derful miracles He performed, which did not fail to astonish the spectators, for not only did He confer hearing and articguage of his country and its signification. Thou, Son of David, have mercy on us, said the blind men at the road side. "What will ye that I should do unto you?" asked Jesus, and they say, "Lord, that our eyes may be opened." In this instance oral conversation was held between the blind men and our Lord. whereas in the case of the deaf and dumb man only one word of power was spoken, accompanied by the silent and significant expression of the eyes and upturned face. He sighed as if his benevolent posom heaved with the deepest compassion for one who was laboring under such an awful deprivation to which the human frame could be liable, and by his upturned expression he seemed to speak to his Father in heaven in behalf of the sufferer from such a sad calamity, for in those days it was indeed a terrible affliction when there were no institutions, schools or systems for their education.

Ephphatha! and the eyes of the blind, the ears of the deaf, and the mouths of the dumb were opened !--one to behold the glorious and wonderful works of Jehovah! the other to hear the glad tidings of Salvation in the advent of Jesus Christ; and by giving speech to the dumb is to show that we are not always to remain so, but that we shall join in the "Alleluia song of heaven hereafter, and also it is a symbol of the wonderful gift of tongues to his disciples shortly after his death, so that they could preach the gospel to every nation and tongue without having to learn them, as our missionaries have, before going out. Our Saviour is not here now on who had advanced so far as to be able to earth to do the same acts of mercy to us, recognize and form with his fingers the but that word is still ringing, and still letters of the alphabet, would act as his heard all over the world, and was in operation from His very birth, for at that time the heavens were opened and ing from the printed page to the mind of angels came forth joyfully singing the this poor blind mute. Then, when the advent of the Son of God, who came as seeing but untaught mute had spelled the the Olive Branch of Reconciliation benews to his blind friend, the latter would tween God and man, and whose sufferings and death showed us the immensi ty and refulgence of his love to a lost world: If He is not here now to open the eyes of the blind, the ears of the deaf, and the mouths of the dumb, the enlightened influence of His doctrine has chased away the darkness of sin, superstition, and ignorance, and has opened a our speech and hearing restored, for do not our eyes hear and our hands speak? We may take the word "Ephphatha" as symbolical of our Lord's work on And as it has "opened the Kingdom of Heaven to all believers," may it open our circumcised hearts and ears and eyes to the influence of His Gospel. I trust we shall all hear that word some day, when it shall burst open our prison-house and our liberated spirits our prison-house and our liberated spirits shall wing their flight to those glorious realms beyond the sky.

RICHARD ROLAND WILLIAMS.

It is quite amusing to see a deaf person who can read the lips watch the shadow of a face in people on the wall, and tell what the shadow says by the movement of its lips. Friends who have called in to spend the evening have often been greatly astonished at this proof of our pupils' skill in lip-reading.
